Lockdown Procedures

Yesterday we had our first practice of school's lockdown procedures. We met in the hall first to advise children of all of the steps and what their role was in the practice. This step was taken to minimise any doubt or worry the children may have had.

We rang the bell to indicate the start of the drill and the children were brilliant. In the event of a serious incident these are the procedures that will be followed. It is my job, or Mrs Smith's job in my absence, to make a judgment call about whether we lockdown, evacuate or partially evacuate depending on the situation and the risks posed. Yesterday was as much about us running through all of our tasks in a lockdown procedure as it was about the children getting used to it.

I have to say, I was immensely proud of all the children from the youngest Ladybirds to the Badgers in Year 6, they all participated brilliantly and there was not a peep. Following the procedure we made sure that none of the children were anxious or worried and reassured them again that it is highly unlikely that we will ever need to use the procedure, but you never know and I would rather have systems and procedures in place to maximise the safety of the children.

May I take this opportunity to remind you that in the event of an actual lockdown procedure, you as parents will be notified through a text message if we feel it is necessary. It will advise you not to contact or approach school. I understand the desire to be near your children in this situation but we would not want to make the situation worse or hamper the efforts of the emergency services. We will keep you up to date and notify you of any changes to the school day and when the situation is over.

We will aim to practice the procedures once a term. Already, following the practice yesterday, we have made amendments to the procedures so that it will run more smoothly - this is the reason for practicing.

As I said previously, we hope we never have to put these procedures into operation but the safety of your children is paramount.

Spot Light on Excellence...

Ladybirds leading the way!

I have been greatly impressed by our youngest pupils in school this week. I have seen them being active learners in their classroom, sharing equipment and playing together happily.

On Thursday they joined us in the hall for an assembly for the first time. They were amazing! Every child walking sensibly and sitting smartly ready to listen. It certainly has shown what a brilliant team we have in our Nursery Class.

Well done Ladybirds!
